Natalie worked for several months in an office but lost her job. This was devastating because she is a single mother of two and wants to make a better life for her children. Inspired by her sister who graduated from ELAC with a degree in nursing, Natalie enrolled at the South Gate Educational Center. She researched career options and was inspired by her Administration of Justice courses to pursue a career in sociology. Her mother helps her with child care and supports her return to college.

“I am lucky to have found South Gate. It is so close to home that I can balance attending classes with taking care of my kids—plus I am a student worker and that helps me financially. Everyone is so friendly and that made going back to college less scary. Mr. Rios has been especially inspiring and continues to encourage me to complete my education. I even bring my three-year old to campus now and then so he can begin to understand that education is very important.”
The Educational Center located in the city of South Gate is a part of East Los Angeles College. Administration and coordination of the Center is the responsibility of the Office of Academic Affairs of East Los Angeles College.
