After working for an outdoor advertising agency for 21 years, Alicia Estrada was laid off. She realized that her skills needed expanding and updating to make her competitive in today's challenging economy. Alicia heard about ELAC's Logistics program and enrolled because the classes looked interesting and it is a quick way to get a certificate that would prepare her for employment in a growth industry.

“I used Global Positioning Systems (GPS) in my former job and that is a critical skill for logistics—plus I am good at detail work. I quickly realized that logistics is a lot more than driving a forklift or a truck. Even though going back to school was a little intimidating, I enjoy the classes and am studying to be certificated to prove I have the skills to work in the industry. I have two children and they are happy that I decided to return to college.”
